DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4, 7-8, 16 and 19-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sorenson (5,598,598).

Regarding claim 1-4, 7-8, 16 and 19-20, Sorenson discloses an extensible handle, comprising a first elongated member (26), made of metal, having two ends, the first end positioned to engage a device to be operated, the first elongated member further comprising an expanded portion of increased width (96,110,98) and a narrow portion of reduced width (26) relative to the expanded portion (see fig 5), the first elongated member comprising at least two receptacles, further comprising pins (92, see fig. 3) for receiving a restricting device (80,110, see fig. 6) through a side surface of the first elongated member (26, see fig. 3). Sorenson further discloses a hollow second elongated member (54), made of metal, having two ends, the second elongated member positioned to receive the first elongated member, the second elongated member further including a restricting means (77, see fig. 5) having a width that is narrower than the width of the expanded portion of the first elongated member and restricts the expanded portion of the first elongated member from fully passing through both ends of the second elongated member, wherein in order to prohibit movement in an axial direction, the first end of the second elongated member is configured to be retained by the restricting device (see col. 7).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sorenson as applied to claims 1-4, 7-8, 16 and 19-20 above, in view of Messier (5,433,127). Sorenson discloses an extensible handle as claimed, but does not disclose the handle activating a jack or dolly. However, Messier teaches the use of an extensible handle (8) wherein activation of the handle by a user activates a jacking device.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the extensible handle as claimed by Sorenson to activate a jacking device as taught by Messier so as to provide an extensible handle that can be extended or retracted without the removal or addition of parts.

5. Claims 9-12 and 14-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tallman (4,018,421) in view of Sorenson.

Regarding claims 9-11 and 14-15, Tallman discloses an apparatus for moving an item comprising a base (10), a supporting means (77) positioned above the base, an arm (71) having two ends, the arm positioned so that one end is pivotally related to the base, a lifting means (20), and a handle (21). Tallman does not disclose a handle as claimed by the Applicant.

However, Sorenson teaches an extensible handle, comprising a first elongated member (26), made of metal, having two ends, the first end positioned to engage a device to be operated, the first elongated member further comprising an expanded portion of increased width (110) and a narrow portion of reduced width (26) relative to the expanded portion (see fig 3), the first elongated member comprising at least two receptacles, further comprising pins (92, see fig. 3) for receiving a restricting device (80,110, see fig. 6) through a side surface of the first elongated member (26, see fig. 3). Sorenson further discloses a hollow second elongated member (54), made of metal, having two ends, the second elongated member positioned to receive the first elongated member, the second elongated member further including a restricting means (77, see fig. 5) having a width that is narrower than the width of the expanded portion of the first elongated member and restricts the expanded portion of the first elongated member from fully passing through both ends of the second elongated member, wherein in order to prohibit movement in an axial direction, the first end of the second elongated member is configured to be retained by the restricting device (see col. 7).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to replace the handle of Tallman with the extensible handle as taught by Sorenson so as to provide an extensible handle that can be extended or retracted without the removal or addition of parts.

Regarding claim 12, Tallman discloses an apparatus wherein activation of the handle by a user activates the lifting means, which in turn activates the arm and vertically moves the supporting means.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed June 25, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant has amended the claims to indicate that a restricting device is received by the first elongated member through a side surface. However, a "side surface" could be any of the surfaces along the elongated member, including the end surface.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
